

SUPPORT FOR Breastfeeding MOMS AT UND

The University of North Dakota (UND) recognizing the health benefits of breastfeeding and strongly supports moms as they return to work and school after having a child.

To assist mom and baby with the benefits of breastfeeding, UND passed a “Lactation Support for Nursing Mothers” policy to allow time and space for the expression of breast milk.

The University provides state and federally compliant mothering rooms on campus.

- 6 approved Mothering Rooms (March, 2016)
- Further accommodations can be made if necessary

INFORMATION

Staff/Faculty/Students/Visitors:

www.und.edu/lactation

Student Policy:

UND.edu/student-affairs/code-of-student-life
(Section 1, #22)

PROGRAM IMPACT

“UND’s mothering room really helped the transition back to work for me after having my baby. I found out about the rooms through campus emails well before I needed the room, so that was one less thing to worry about when I returned to work. I felt very supported having a convenient, private place close to my office where I could pump as often as I needed.”

–Dr. Arielle Selya, UND Faculty Member

“We are proud to be designated by the state of North Dakota as ‘Infant Friendly’ for our dedication to work-life harmony for moms to return to work and school with support, time allowances and space to provide breast milk; the best nourishment to their babies and for the self-care of our moms.”

–Kim Ruliffson, Coordinator of Work Well

From 2014-2015, 32 moms used 4 of the tracked rooms totaling 1,439 visits.

CONTACT INFORMATION

University of North Dakota
Work Well, 701-777-0210
Kim Ruliffson, kimberly.ruliffson@und.edu